Highway Opening This AM

Gov. John A. Volpe is expected to head a group of Commonwealth officials attending ceremonies here this morning to open the six-mile section of Interstate Highway 495 between I-93 Andover and Rt. 110 in Methuen.

Also on hand will be members of the Andover Board of Selectmen and Manager Richard Bowen to give official greetings from this community. Mayor John Buckley of Lawrence will appear as spokesman for other communities in the Merrimack Valley who benefit from access to Rt. 495.

Rev. Edward Garney OSA, St. Augustine's Church, Lawrence will give the invocation and Rev. David Allen of Christ Episcopal Church, Andover will offer the benediction.

The public is invited to attend the 9:45 a.m. ceremonies which will take place at the I-93 interchange.

In announcing plans for the opening, DPW Commissioner Francis W. Sargent said that although some local ramps to the highway would not be completed for use, the twin-barrelled freeway would be ready for through traffic. He said that it had been the target of the Department to have the section ready for Labor Day travel and that the contractor had been able to meet the deadline.

DEADLINE

The TOWNSMAN will close its offices Monday, Labor Day, in observance of the national holiday. Copy for the Sept. 9 issue should be in by Friday, Saturday at the latest. Late breaking news will be handled on Tuesday, Sept. 7.

Red Stickers Required For Dump Use By Sept. 6

Eye-catching blue and red facilities stickers must be attached to all Andover residents' cars by Labor Day.

This was Town Manager Richard Bowen's edict some weeks ago, and he issued a reminder this week with the warning that being without a new sticker will prove "inconvenient."

After Sept. 6, cars that are not marked with the official blue "A" will be denied entrance to the town dump, Bowen said. Drivers will be asked to prove residence with a vehicle registration and referred to the Police Station for purchase of the 25 cent sticker.

The clamp down is part of the manager's all-out program to police the dump and improve its appearance.

We have good reason to believe that a fair number of South Lawrence residents are using our dump, Bowen said.

Heating Question Hangs Fire

It will be electric heat at the new senior high school IF consulting engineers consider the use of such a heat saver practical and IF Mass. Electric Co. is willing to foot the bill for its installation.

This was Manager Richard Bowen's position at TOWNSMAN presstime.

Based on an analysis of cost figures prepared by Mass. Electric and the New England Fuel Institute, it has now been determined that it will cost an estimated $2,700 less to heat the planned school with oil than with electricity.

The power company this week, however, introduced a new factor which could tip the balance toward the heating system preferred by the building committee. The feasibility of installing a regenerator which could reclaim as much as 80 percent of the school's heat is being considered by engineers responsible for this part of the planning.

If they come up with a favorable opinion, Mass. Electric will be given the chance to underwrite the cost of the regenerator or risk seeing the decision go to its competitors in the oil industry.

Bowen pointed out that a heat regenerator can also be used with an oil heat system, but said he would support the use of electricity over oil if the costs could be brought in line with those to be expected with the use of a conventional oil system.

He added that the architect's figure for the $2,724 differential between estimated oil and electric heating costs for the school did not take into consideration the some $6,000 in architect's fees that would be lopped off if the choice were electric heat. Nor does it include, he said, the $11,000 in cash that the power company has offered as an inducement. Figuring in these totals, it cuts the annual operating differential to $1,900 over a 20 year period, he said.

Allen Named To Welfare Committee

Philip K. Allen, chairman of the Andover Board of Selectmen, has been named a member of a state-wide Committee of Citizens for the Public Welfare Study of Massachusetts. It is announced by Don K. Price, chairman and dean of the graduate school of public administration, Harvard University.

The citizens committee is composed of community leaders, physicians, attorneys, businessmen, educators, legislators, and representatives of labor and civic organizations. They are being asked to help evaluate findings and recommendations of the Public Welfare Study, conducted to design a more effective public welfare system that will develop methods

ANDOVER CO-OP

A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the CO-OP

On our way back to work from lunch, recently, we were walking along with an attractive young mother and her two children. We knew her only casually, yet well enough to know that she did not shop at our favorite store.

We did not mention the CO-OP; she did.
"Can non-members shop at the CO-OP?" she asked.

It was with difficulty that we restrained a look of surprise.

"There are open and closed societies" we replied. "Ours must be the most 'open door' organization in existence. We would welcome you with open arms."

The CO-OP cherishes its members, of course, and urges all non-members to try the store which so many canny, savvy citizens have discovered to be a great source of SAVINGS in REAL dollars. Try us!

Chamber Fills Ten Key Posts

Nine committee chairmen and a new member of the board of directors were nominated by Andover Chamber of Commerce President Austin E. Anderson and approved by the board at its August meeting.

Rev. Richard Streeter, of South Church, United Church of Christ, was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Very Rev. Francis S. N. McGuire of St. Augustine's Church as director.

The Andover Chamber will function with nine committees during the 1965-66 year. These are the committees and the chairmen approved: retail: Robert L. Reddish; parking, David B. Woodworth; chamber and town relations, W. W. Rhoads; Christmas lighting, George Heseltine; community service award, Atty. Richard M. Sullivan; industrial relations, Vartkes Sohlgian; municipal affairs, A. D. MacLaren; folder committee, John Hewitt; and annual dinner, Paul J. McVey.

The directors also decided that the Chamber "should serve as the voice of the business community and distribute information to the members on any issue affecting the business community."

To enable the chamber to accomplish this objective, the directors voted to invite town officials to attend future sessions to discuss projects that do affect the business community.

J.H. Homeroom Assignments Set

Special seventh and eighth grade homeroom classes have been set up at Andover Junior High School for band and orchestra students, Principal William E. Hart said in releasing class assignments this week.

It facilitates the scheduling of instructional and rehearsal periods for these boys and girls to segregate them in establishing homerooms, the principal explained.

The balance of the students in these two classes has been divided alphabetically, on the basis listed below.

Because of the complexity of scheduling ninth grade students, there is no alphabetical pattern to the listing. For this reason, the TOWNSMAN is printing the assignments for the freshman class in their entirety.

TO PROTECT A YOUNG LEAF LINDEN on Howell Dr., Tree Supt. Phil Busby and one of his men direct water into the root system where it will do the most good - a technique which involves a minimum of water but gives young town plantings a mid-drought drink. (Cole)

Town's Tree Dept. Run By Licensed Arborist

(A Townsman News Feature)
Part II

Why hasn't the town replaced the tree cut from in front of Olde Andover Village on Main St.? And what about the tree that used to stand in front of the municipal parking lot? Why can't we put something in its place?

Tree Supt. Philip Busby is a licensed arborist, a conservationist with the soul of a poet and the skill of a professional, and he can give what he says are sound reasons for these "Whys" and numerous others that less informed tree lovers raise.

Let's start with an answer on the decayed ash that came down just outside the Village some months ago. It cannot be replaced, not for at least five to seven years. It will take that long for the 12 ft. stump area that remains under the sidewalk to deteriorate to the point that another tree could be planted and survive. To rip open the sidewalk and uproot the stump is a practical impossibility. It could be done, but the cost would be staggering.

As for the dead maple cut from the street at the municipal parking lot, two young trees grow in its place, just inside the parking lot wall. Full grown, they will shade the street more amply than their predecessor, the superintendent observes.

Manager Richard Bowen and Busby have, for some time, been investigating the possibility of tree plantings for the rest of the Main St. area between the Village and Elm Square. Some sort of program will evolve, but it will require plenty of groundwork.

In plotting any planting plan, the tree superintendent has to take into consideration the power lines overhead, the water and sewer lines underground, sidewalk widths, store accesses and a hundred and one factors that weren't around to bother the natives when they set trees alongside a narrow dirt road-way.

One perpetual problem is serving a public that demands tree shaded streets in summer and efficiently plowed highways in winter. The prolific use of salt and black top serves one to the detriment of the other. Thoroughly workable compromises have yet to be found, but be found they must or Busby is convinced that street trees will continue to die.

The arborist looks to re-searchists for the answers. With concentrated effort they have all but licked Dutch Elm disease, he says. Pressed just as hard for a solution to the salt problem, they will come up with a product to clear away ice without damaging trees and ground water supplies.

Busby is taking a two-pronged approach to coping with Dutch Elm: he is both fighting it and accepting it as a temporary fact of life. Where trees go in on streets denuded by Dutch Elm, Busby plants a variety of saplings to keep the town's tree supply from again being victimized by a single disease.

Secondly, he and his men attack the beetle - transmitted fungus that attacks Elms with the best sprays now available for the job. In addition, Busby and two of his men have already taken instructions in the use of a new systemic insecticide that the arborist believes will make control of the deadly Dutch Elm sickness possible within five years.

Andover will not shift to use of this technique until tests now underway at the University of Massachusetts are completed and authoritative data on dosages available. Busby reports, safe for birds and other wild life, the new insecticide is injected into the tree itself.

But dosages must be carefully prescribed: too little will kill nothing - too much will kill the tree, says a cautious Busby.

NEXT WEEK: More on trees.

trol unofficial burning at the dump, Bowen is assigning a second man to work in that area.

Visibly annoyed by the fact that fires are being lit in the dump virtually every day, the manager said "This incessant burning is costing us money." He referred to the cost moving fire fighting equipment and men into the area for each fire.

"In addition," he said, "we are using water that shouldn't be used."

He said this week that anyone caught burning will be prosecuted and that any unauthorized person apprehended in the dump after hours will be taken into custody by the police.

The manager further said that juvenile scavengers will be routed and that "professionals" will not be permitted to dump pick unless they have the "express consent of the town."

The dump is open 10 hours a day, six days a week, Bowen said, indicating that he feels this gives residents plenty of time to use the facility. The dump also remains open on most holidays.

Headstart

In a matter of weeks the U. S. Government should begin to get some feed back on Operation Headstart. Experienced teachers are going to know in short order whether or not first year children from disadvantaged homes are readier to cope with educational challenges than predecessors from the same background.

Then will follow the job of evaluating the degree of readiness in terms of the cost, and hopefully, some creative thinking about how to translate the Headstart ideal into a more practical tool for lifting horizons. There can be no question that as it was this summer, hastily conceived and executed, it cost more than it needs to cost.

Despite the frantic job of organization that went on in the weeks prior to the opening of Headstart schools, the handful of Andover children included in the initial experiment were exposed to a big chunk of the world in eight weeks. Full credit for this goes to the Lawrence Guidance Center and the professional staff it pulled together to meet the President's Headstart deadlines.

Additional bouquets are due the number of Andover people who donated time and talent to enrich the program and due the School Department, also, for materials lent and given.

There is local discussion of a future for Headstart, but the particulars remain vague as federal and state agencies work out the details of a plan for regional administration of the program. It is already known, however, that all such Economic Opportunity programs in this area are to be coordinated through the Lawrence OEO office.

This will mean cooperation. Fortunately, Andover knows from its summer experience with Headstart that there are people here willing to exert themselves for the good of the human race.

With Regret

The TOWNSMAN has given its approval to the edict from school officials outlawing extremes in dress for students at the high school . . . but with regret.

Society has eaten away at personal freedoms until the loss of the right to decide between a woven and a knitted shirt can seem significant out of all proportion.

Parents should have the right to set the standards of dress for their children. It has been taken from them because they have, in increasing numbers, failed to function.

"Why should I," says the high school principal, "have to send a girl to the dean's office to be reprimanded because her skirt is immodestly short?" Why indeed? That's part of what mothers are for.

Today's adults have been accused and accused of expecting too much of the public schools. If they now find it easier to let educators prescribe the rules of judgment and taste in dress than to buck teen trends, the accusation seems more than justified.

THE TOUGHEST JOB IN THE WORLD . . .

It can be more fatiguing than a day of stonecutting.

It can be more nervewracking than a day of heart surgery.

It can bring happiness, life . . .

or failure, unhappiness, death.

In today's security-conscious society, it's a job fewer people want to tackle.

It's not for the fain-hearted who are afraid to fail.

It's not for the reckless who can be dangerous.

It invites ridicule, criticism and unpopularity.

But without it the world stands still.

It is the lonely, ulcerous, precarious job of making decisions. (Newsweek)

Down The Years

75 Years Ago - September, 1890

A pleasant and novel entertainment was provided a small gathering of friends and neighbors by Mr. and Mrs. William G. Goldsmith at their home on Elm St. last Monday evening. A corn roast was the title given the affair, and many other good things made the refreshment part of the evening very enjoyable.

E. E. Trefry, with J. H. Campion & Co. is kept from work by a severe case of typhoid fever.

"Let any boy that smokes cigarettes look at me now and know how I have suffered, and he will never put another into his mouth." These were almost the last words of Samuel Kimball (no relation to local Kimballs), sixteen years of age, who died in a ward at St. John's Hospital, Brooklyn Friday. As he lay upon his cot he was indeed a sad spectacle, and a glance at him undoubtedly would have been a forcible warning to millions of youthful cigarette smokers. His body was of a deadly yellowish hue; the face, arms and trunk were emaciated, and his legs swollen to twice their normal size . . . From the first his case was considered hopeless . . . but it was found that he was suffering from a dropsical condition of the legs. "To me," said his faithful nurse, "he confessed that his trouble had originated from cigarette smoking. Some days, he said, he smoked twenty cigarettes."

IMAGINATIVE USES FOR ORDINARY THINGS - Children attending Headstart classes for Andover-North Andover-Methuen were introduced to the idea of contemporary sculpture by Phillips Academy's Gerard Shertzer. Here they try their hand at creating with straws. (Leaf)

50 Years Ago - September, 1915

Mrs. M. E. Dalton and children and Mrs. Ralph Manning and children left town yesterday for a ten days' camping trip to Boxford.

On Monday, Labor Day, there will be one delivery of mail by the local carriers.

The Beehive, a landmark in Frye Village has been recently sold by Mrs. John Morgan to George Murray of West Parish. The store has been in existence for about thirty years, the last twenty of which it has been conducted by Mrs. Morgan.

25 Years Ago - September, 1940

A sizeable group of war refugee students accounts for Phillips Academy's record enrollment of near 750 this year. It is expected that there will be 20-30 refugees from the war areas. Last year there was 723 students at the school.

An increase of some 25 students in the Junior high and just about the same enrollment for Pynchard high was forecast yesterday. Although the figures are changing constantly, 326 had enrolled at Pynchard and 460 at the Junior high.

Bob Sides of Phillips Academy has returned from Honolulu with his bride and from all accounts, it was one perfectly perfect trip . . . the couple drove back to town, coming all the way across the country without mishaps until they arrived in Tewksbury where an original, if not romantic, officer-of-the-law presented them with a ticket . . . just a little welcome home gift.

Rev. Mr. Noss, also back from a long cross-country trip, was allowed to get within the town lines before his suitcase handle gave a tired groan and snapped off. The pastor considers it a lucky break, however, because it could have happened in California.

10 Years Ago - September, 1955

The local Red Cross disaster fund (Hurricane Diane) gave ten times the Red Cross quota of $615. A special town meeting will be held this month because the Rogers Brook drainage system promises to cost far more than the amount voted by town meeting last April. The lowest bid received was for $248,888.

"Andover has about reached its limit in new school construction," That's the opinion of Mrs. Dorothy Partridge, a school committee member and former Pynchard teacher. She hastened to add, however, that new construction may be necessary in Ballardvale if enrollment figures there indicate a crowded condition or if the building proves to be unsafe. Her comment that the limit has nearly been reached referred to the many other community problems that may cost a lot of the taxpayer's money during the next few years - such as a new sewer mains, water and other improvements demanded of a growing community.

Michael J. Sullivan, 363 N. Main St., has the distinction of being Shawsheen's only living Spanish-American War veteran.

Pruning Time Table

One of the most frequent questions asked of Essex County Extension officials at this time of year is: Can I prune my plants now? This is probably because homeowners have more time to spend in their gardens during summer vacations and weekends and are more apt to notice that their plants require pruning.

As a general statement which needs certain qualifications - you can lightly prune any plant at any time, but most plants have a "best" or "better" time. For instance, for most trees it is best to prune between February 1 and May 1. You will want to avoid pruning semi hardy trees such as ornamental cherry and peach from November through the end of January. For trees such as elm, birch, maple and others that exude sap in the spring pruning during the summer is better.

An important qualification to our general statement is that heavy pruning during the summer months should be avoided if possible as you will remove from the plant the leaves it needs for food manufacturing and heavy late summer pruning stimulates the tree to put out new growth which might be easily killed off by our cold winter.

If your shrubs are badly overgrown, dormant season (winter) pruning is the best time for heavy cutting back. Otherwise, the better time to prune early blooming shrubs is after flowering; for late flowering shrubs, early spring pruning is better.

Evergreens are best pruned in May or June but light pruning during the summer is acceptable. The exception here is Rhododendron which flower only on current growth; this summer's growth produces next spring's flowers. Prune these right after flowering or if summer pruning is a must, take off only 1/3 of the bush each year so that you do not remove all of next years flowers.

The main purpose of pruning ornamental plants is to keep them in scale for their desired landscape effect. Many plants if they have sufficient room to grow require little or no pruning.

Practical Arts Classes Get Underway Sept 21

School bells will ring this month for adults who want expert how-to-do training of the sort offered through the Andover Evening Practical Arts Program.

Two new courses, one in the making of slip covers and draperies and the other in knitting, will be offered when the program gets underway, Richard E. Neal, director reports.

Classes will begin the week of Sept. 21 and meet once a week from 7 to 10 p.m. in the East Wing at Andover Junior High School. Two ten-week semesters are scheduled.

Course enrollment is limited, making early registration important, Neal said this week. Prospective students may register by mail, by calling the director at 0372 or by attending one of two registration sessions in the East Wing at the Junior High, Sept. 14 or 15 between 7 and 8 p.m.

RESERVE COURSES

Two Andover men have enrolled for courses in the Naval Reserve Officers School at Salem. Capt. Alexander Robins, USNR, of 78 Salem St. and Lt. Frederic A. Pease Jr., of Phillips Academy will take a forty-week course which will enable them to earn all necessary points toward promotion and retirement for the year by attending classes on Monday evenings at the Naval Reserve Training Center, Derby St., Salem.

Last year 195 adults signed for EPA classes.

Classes are scheduled as follows: Monday - beginners sewing, Tuesday - advanced sewing, rug, braiding, slip covers and draperies, furniture refinishing, Wednesday - beginners sewing, advanced sewing and knitting, Thursday - tailoring.

All but two courses are open to beginners only. Students enrolling for advanced sewing, however, must have had beginners sewing and those signing for tailoring must have studied advanced sewing, Neal said.

The Practical Arts courses offered are taught by instructors who are active in the field they teach and whose qualifications have been approved by the State Department of Education. The classes are free to Andover residents though the student must provide his own supplies and materials.

Getting Fitted "Back To School" Shoes

John D. Reilly, is the store manager of Lamey-Wellehan, "Lawrence's Complete Shoe Store," located at 331 Essex St. At his downtown store, Mr. Reilly is ready to equip the whole family with good shoes to match the new clothes for Fall. He has a fine selection of all the finest, since he carries huge inventories of only the best shoe brands like Red Cross, Florsheim, Stride-Rite, Wallstreet, Lucey, Sebago, Hush Puppies, Cotillion, Penajlo, Clinic and Miller. So you'll be sure to find the shoes you're looking for in a jiffy at Lamey-Wellehan's. There's absolutely no waiting-even with all the "back to school traffic" - because Mr. Reilly employs a staff of nine who are all expert shoe outfitters. And when you're at the store, why not pick up a pair of U. S. Keds, the sturdy sneaker for athletic wear or inspect the fine line of handbags and hosiery.

John Reilly's store in Lawrence is a part of the Lamey-Wellehan chain which also operates shoe stores in Portland, Lewiston, Augusta, and Rumford, Maine. This large shoe firm, which was established in 1914, expanded to Lawrence in 1944 by assuming control of D. D. Mahony's and Sons Shoe Store that had been established since 1856. With the change in ownership and the overall improvement in operation, the store has prospered ever since.

John Reilly invites you to visit his store whenever you are looking for a good pair of new shoes or to call 682-3726 anytime to check on the traditional moderate prices offered by Lamey-Wellehan.

Two Andover Farmers To Get Fair Awards

Two Andover men will be among nine farmers honored at the Topsfield Fair next week for their long service to agriculture.

One of the two, Krikor Loosigian, 249 Haggett's Pond Rd., has been farming 50 years and the other, Harry Loosigian, 179 River Rd., for 26.

Krikor and Harry are father and son and farm together their acreage on River Rd.

The Fair started its program to honor elder farmers sixteen years ago. This year nine more senior tillers of the soil have qualified for the Society award.

In addition to Loosigian, four 50-year men will be honored: Antonia Forgetta, North Andover; Arnold B. Brown, Marblehead; Angelo Bonanno, Methuen and Dr. Ralph Moulthrop, Methuen.

The others and the years of service are in addition to Harry Loosigian: Lawrence G. Dodge, West Newbury, 33; Miss Madeline R. Torrey, Beverly, 30; Everett D. Jewett, Ipswich, 41.

Morse Urges NASA Change

Congressman F. Bradford Morse has again urged that the auxiliary suburban site for the NASA Electronics Research Center be located in the Fifth Congressional District.

In a letter to Webb, Morse pointed out that NASA indicated that a suburban, auxiliary site would be necessary to conduct the research and experimentation not feasible in an urban location.

"The Fifth Congressional District contains a number of excellent sites for this facility," Morse said. "During the initial selection process they were commended highly for their access to major highways, their proximity to major business and educational centers and for the abundance of power and other needs in the area."

Morse told Webb, "I hope that all of these sites and others in the District available for this purpose will be carefully considered."

The Congressman asked Webb for an "up-to-date status report on planning for the auxiliary facility."
